BIO

Prior to joining the firm, Eyal completed a pre-internship in the chambers of a judge in the Economic Department of the Haifa District Court.

Eyal served as a research assistant to three faculty members, contributing to projects spanning a wide range of legal fields, including administrative law, public international law, legal theory, regulation, technology and artificial intelligence. In addition, he was a research fellow at the Shamgar Center for Digital Law and Innovation. He currently serves as a teaching assistant for courses on political philosophy and legal theory within the Faculty of Law at Tel Aviv University.

Eyal was also involved in several extracurricular academic initiatives. During his legal studies at the Faculty of Law at Tel Aviv University, Eyal was a member of the editorial board of Iyunei Mishpat – The Tel Aviv University Law Review, participated in the Faculty’s annual moot court competition, and was a participant in the Human Rights Clinic. He was the producer and an editorial board member of Medabrim Mishpatim – Talking Law, the Faculty’s official podcast sponsored by our firm. Additionally he served as a project manager for the Law and High-Tech Club.

In recognition of his academic achievements, Eyal received the Dean’s Award for Academic Excellence in both his first and second years of law school. He also holds a Bachelor’s degree in Political Science (with honors) and is a graduate of the “Ofakim” Excellence Program at the University of Haifa.
