BIO

Gal Cohen is an associate within the firm's Projects, Infrastructure and Energy Department.

During his LL.B studies, he served as a member in the Hebrew University's Israel Law Review editorial board. In addition, he served as a teaching assistant, coaching teams of students in the Hebrew University of Jerusalem and the Interdisciplinary Center of Herzliya for their participation in the renowned International Committee of the Red Cross International Humanitarian Law domestic and international debates.

A recipient of the prestigious Chevening Scholarship, Gal completed his LL.M. studies at the University College London (UCL), during which he participated in UCL's Public International Law Pro Bono Project, conducting legal research aimed at promoting adherence to the rule of law by non-state actors. Gal continued to participate in the project after completing his LL.M studies by supervising and coordinating research undertaken by the students, following the conclusion of his studies.

In 2022, Gal has begun writing his PhD thesis in University College London, entitled "The Application of jus ad bellum during Armed Conflicts", addressing questions of public international law, in particular the laws of armed conflict and the rules restricting the use of force by States.
