Real Estate | Planning and Zoning

BIO

Ohad specializes in real estate law, urban planning, construction, and administrative procedures. He manages real estate projects from the acquisition of land rights through strategic negotiations with contractors and suppliers, while navigating complex regulatory frameworks with governmental and municipal authorities to secure planning approvals. Ohad also oversees construction processes, resolving legal and technical challenges, and finalizes transactions through the sale of units.

In addition to his private practice, Ohad held a senior legal role within the Ministry of Defense, focusing on legal and regulatory matters in the Judea and Samaria region, particularly in planning, construction, and real estate law.

Ohad previously served as the professional advisor to the Minister of Housing and Construction, where he played a key role in shaping policies related to urban renewal and Israel Lands Authority initiatives. In this capacity, Ohad provided strategic legal and regulatory guidance, helping to advance national housing objectives, streamline urban development projects, and address land management issues crucial to Israel's long-term growth.
