BIO

Assaf Mesica’s practice includes corporate law, securities law and commercial law. He provides ongoing consultation to various boards and managements of both publicly traded and privately held companies in a wide array of matters including public and private capital raising, mergers and acquisitions, preparation of commercial agreements and corporate governance.

Assaf’s practice also includes financing, specifically providing legal consultation to both financiers and borrowers in complex financing deals. Among his clients are banks, numerous institutional bodies, credit card companies, private non-bank credit companies and corporate and individual borrowers. In the scope of his financing work, Assaf advises on fund formation in many areas, and represents funds seeking to raise capital from investors in order to provide loans to, and invest in, many different matters related to their field of activity.

Assaf is recognized by The Legal 500 and IFLR1000 for his expertise in corporate, securities, and finance law, underscoring his reputation as a trusted advisor to leading financial institutions and publicly traded companies.

Assaf represents many publicly-traded companies and reporting corporations, provides legal consultation on the insolvency of companies that are subject to the Israeli Securities Law, and provides legal advice and representation to trustees and institutional bodies, publicly-traded companies and reporting corporations in debt arrangements, and in liquidations and receiverships of companies that are in financial hardship.

Assaf received his law degree from the Interdisciplinary Center (IDC) Herzliya in 2005 and joined the firm in 2006 as an articled clerk. He was admitted to the Israel Bar in 2007, returned to the firm as a lawyer the same year and became a partner in 2015.
