BIO

Uri is a corporate lawyer with over 15 years of experience advising investors, startups and emerging growth companies, on a range of corporate and financing matters. His work includes representing Israeli and international clients in venture capital and private equity investments, M&A transactions, and general corporate matters.

Uri regularly advises venture capital funds, angel investors, and strategic investors in connection with investments in Israeli and Israeli-related companies and has extensive experience working with entrepreneurs, founders, early-stage and growth-stage companies throughout their lifecycle – from incorporation and founder agreements, through financing rounds and commercial agreements, and up to exit.

EXPERIENCE HIGHLIGHTS

Uri supports clients across a broad spectrum of industries (such as Cyber, Food Tech, Adtech, Fintech) and provides day-to-day legal guidance to startups and privately held companies, helping to navigate the legal aspects of fundraising, employee equity, and corporate governance.

Before joining Arnon, Tadmor-Levy, Uri was a partner at prominent Israeli law firms, where he advised a wide range of clients on both domestic and cross-border transactions.
